HONGKONG, JULY 20TH, 1911.

How greatly the trade of Uhina suffers from the indifference of the Chinese trader to the complaints of the purchaser of his merchandise it is impossible to estimate, but the growing frequency of these complaints is a noteworthy feature of the annual reports on trade by Commissioners of the Chinese Customs as well as by Consuls. We have, for example, long been familiar with the complaint that the decline of the once flourishing tea trade of China at the and the indifference of the grower to the changing conditions of the local market. Another instance is now to be found in the famous pongee trade of Chefoo. The Comhas this to say on the subject: "In regard | fined $10, and the other $25. to pongees, the tendency to deterioration in quality, noticed in the report for 1909, has use the words of a local merchant, been reaction everywhere,' and the respectable export figures given in the table-7,394 piculs—must not be taken to mean that this trade is continuing to prosper. The weavers and dealers, eager for immediate profit only and careless of the future of their trade. 1909, increased. Foreign exporters, having are loud over the treatment of the small investor. ed to the winner and runner-up.

to make their contracts beforehand and being practically forced to take delivery even if the quality be below standard, can do little to counteract this evil, which cuts at the very root of the trade. The home buyers o such an expensive article as heavy pongees naturally insist on good quality. Not gettingit, they have turned to European fabrics, with the result that remarkable perfection has been attained in imitating heavy Nanshan pongees. It is not surprising therefore that while it was impossible to place orders for these towards the close of 1909, there should at present be no demand at all for them. For the cheaper and lighter grades, conditions have been somewhat better, though there have been many complaints of inferior quality and short lengths. The pongee business for 1910 has thus been far from profitable for exporters, and the prospects for the coming year are not encouraging. The native dealers, too, must have lost heavily in the end, and it is permissible putting in their own men. The vessel under to hope that they will profit by the lesson. Once, however, a fabric of this kind loses its hold on the home fashion market, it is no easy task to regain it." Turning to the reports on other trade centres, contained in Burnett & Co.'s the volume of the Customs reports now before us, comprising the Northern Ports only, we find the Commissioner at Tientsin mentioning in connection with the bean and pea export trade that "there are complaints of unsatisfactory methods of trading, the dealers failing to carry out the contracts for which advances had been." The Commissioner at Newchwang has something very similar to say on the same subject, quoting as his authority a large London importing firm. "Exports from China," he says "have suffered a good deal through the dishonesty of traders, who have made forward contracts and failed to keep them. Steps should be taken to prevent such occurrences, which injure greatly the Chinese reputation for reliability." The Chinese trader has hitherto enjoyed reputation for honesty and reliability seconto none, and it would be well worth the while of the local Chinese Chambers of Commerce and the Industrial Commissioner A. S. WATSON & CO., to pay heed to such complaints as we have quoted after a casual glance through the latest volume of Customs, Reports and to bring all the influence they command to bear upon the delinquents with a view to checking this indifference and dishonesty which not only impair the enviable reputation which the Chinese trader has hitherto en-

Two bittered Chinese were arraigned before Mr. Hazeland at the Magistracy on a charge of fighting. The coolies were engaged to carry a passenger's luggage from the harbour to a hotel, and on the way a quarrel arose as to the fair distribution of the weight, which was the cause of the trouble. On Tuesday evening two Chinese broke into a store at Yik Ming Ling Street, West Point, and stole a bundle of human hair valued at $40. They were subsequently arrested by a Chinese detective, and while being conveyed to the police station one of the men drew a knife and severed his queue. The detective promptly soized hold of his coat, but the prisoner struggled, and, leaving part of his coat in the hand of the detective, escaped. The other defendant was charged before Mr. Hazeland at the Magistracy yesterday and remanded for a week.

Some months ago, we (Straits Times) announced the fact that a Chinese syndicate had been formed in Singapore to acquire the joyed throughout the world for reliability; necessary p'ant to embark in deep-sea trawling. but damage the permanent trade interests | The steam trawler Golden Cross, which had proved a failure in Indian waters, was hired by the syndicate with a view to purchase, and operations commenced. The promoters were sanguine of success at the outset, but after several months' trial, it has been demonstrated beyond a doubt that the catch is not sufficient to more than pay current expenses, to say nothing about the chances of paying a dividend; so the syndicate has decided to wind up its affairs and the Golden Cross has been despatched to Rangoon to its owner.

> It will be of interest to prospective passengers to the United States to learn that the Pacific Mail Company has appointed a Superintending Caterer to take charge of the commissariat department of the ships of their trans-Pacific fleet, with a view to bringing up the onisine and service to the highest possible standard. It has hitherto been by no means a low standard, but evidently the Company's motto in this matter is "the very best." Mr. Moroni, formerly of the Astor House Hotel, Shanghai, has been appointed to that position, and the reputation which this hotel has enjoyed in the East is a guarantee of his qualifications. Mr. Moroni has had in fact, a wide experience, and his reputation is international. He has already entered upon his new duties, being now on the Mongolia, which is on her way to San Francisco. It will be the duty of this officer to travel between the East and San Francisco on the various ships of the Company's fleet. The solicitude thus shown by the Company for the general comfort of passengers cannot fail to be appreciated by the travelling public.

CRITICISM IN PARLIAMENT

London, July 19th.

At question time in the House, or Commons yesterday, Sir Edward Grey said he was confident that Lord Kitchener's qualities and special knowledge of Egypt and his impartiality would make his appointment to Egypt one commanding general confidence.

Mr. Byles, M.P., suggested that soldiers should keep to their own jobs. We were fast drifting to an army-ridden nation.

Sir Edward Grey said the post was an exceedingly difficult one, and he knew no one possessing qualifications equal to Lord Kitchener's. No special conditions attached to the appointment, and naturally before he departs the policy to be followed will be the subject of discussion between Lord Kitchener and the Government. The appointment involves no change in policy.

Prisoners pleaded not guilty and the following jury wore empanelled: Measra H. Hupenden, T. P. Hall, B. Galluzi, K. Sayce, E. H. F.vans The Attorney-General said the father of the child, a fortune teller, resided at 19, Peel Street. On the 14th June the child was missed and a report was made to the police. The police went to No. 14, Sai On Lane, and there found the child in the custody of the two prisoners. The people in the house said the prisoners brought the child to the house. Someboily asked why they brought the child, and the first prisoner replied that somebody wanted to buy a small boy. On being taken to the Police Station' the first prisoner said he went to the house to sit down and take tea. The second prisoner said a woman told him to take the boy to the house, and he did so, as he wished to earn two or three dollars as a go-between. Obviersly the prisoners deliberately stole the child with the idea of selling it.

The jury found both prisoners guilty. The first was sentenced to five years' imprisonment and the second to seven year imprisonment.

A CEMETERY PROSECUTION.

BURIAL WITHOUT NOTICE

At the Magistracy yesterday before Mr. J R. Wood, Inspector Kelly, in charge of Cameteries, proceeded against the head sexton of the Roman Catholic Cemetery for burying the body of an adult female and an infant without giving the required notice, Inspector Kelly testified to visiting the Roman Catholic Cemetery at about 6 p.m. on July 8th. He found two funerals in progress, and altogether that afternoon there had been five burials. Two were mentioned in the summons. The other three were of infants from the French Convent. It was the duty of defendant to give witness two hours' notice of any burial, but this he failed to: do on the day in question.

His Worship-Were all those burials without notice?-Yes. Proceeding, witness said that when he visited the cometery he did not see the defendant, but he saw the body of the female lying alongside the bodies of the three infants. No graves bad been dug for these bodies, but witness gave orders that the adult should be buried. On the following Monday the Inspector again visited the cemetery and found out where the bodies had been buried. He stated that two other cases had occurred since the present summons had been i-sued, and that this practice was becoming a great nuisance.

Defendant informed the Court that as soon as the body of the infant arrived he gave the required notice.

His Worship asked Inspector Kelly if he wished to press the matter with regard to the female adult. The Inspector replied that he thought a warning would meet the case.

Defendant stated that when the body of the infant referred to in the summons arrived, he had no grave ready, but he saw the body buried a little after six o'clock.

His Worship-Who told you about the burial?-My nephew, who produced the burial certificate and gave it to the Inspector. Who usually gives you notice of burials?-

Anyone else ?-No. The hearing was adjourned for a week.

CHICKENS CAUSE TROUBLE.

A quarrel between neighbours came on for hearing before Mr. F. A. Hazeland at the Magistracy yesterday afternoon when Alfred Walters, Chief Engineer of the French stermet Charles Hardowin, summoned Theodore Braun, of the China Sugar Refinery Co., en charges of assault, killing a chicken, and using abasive language. The defendant brought a crosssummons for assault against Mr. Walters and his wife.

Mr. J. H. Gardiner appeared on behalf of the original complainant, and Mr. M Reader Harris (of Measrs. Wilkinson & Grist) represented Mr. Braun. The summonres were consolidated,

Mr. Gardiner, in opening the case for the complainant, stated that on the 12th instant at about 2.30 p.m. the defendant hired a ricsha at the Fire Brigade Station, went as far as the Belle View Hotel, and then returned home to No. 41, Moreton Terrace, There he tendered the ricsha coolie fifteen cents. The coolie asked for more, and held out his, hand with the money in it. The defendant took away five cents, leaving ten cents as fare. The coolis then complained more, whereupon i the defendant pulled everything movable out of the riesha and turned the vehicle over. The puller became greatly slarmed, and seeing some constables near the Hippodrome Circus, called out "police," and ran in their direction. Before the coolie had run far the defendant called him i back, and said he would give him fifty cents if he would return and kill the complainant's chickens. The cool e took no notice, so defendant righted the riesha, took hold of the handles and pushed the riceha against a hencoop belonging to Mr. Walters. In doing this he ran over and killed a small chicken, and when he collided with the coop the exertion apparently was too much for him, and he fell down between the shefts and sat there. Afterwards he got up. and seeing Mr. Walters on the veraudah, called to him to come down, using abusive language. Therenpon Mr. had beliaved as he had.

that the chickons should disturb his slumbers. all goes well. The defendant had complained to the Sanitary Board, but no action was taken by that Board. His Worship-Judging from your story.

there was some ill-feeling between the parties previously. Mr. Gardiner-There may have been some ill feeling towards my client; because he kept chickens, but it is not illegal to keep chickens. His Worship-The partles were not atter strangers? Mr. Gardiner-They never were friends, so far as I know. Proceeding, the solicitor stated that when Mr. Walters went down, followed by his wife and a Mr. Dixon, there was a discussion. The defendant, without justification, then struck Mr. Walters a heavy blow on the left | side. This was the first blow struck, and the complainant, who received it, had been for some time receiving medical attention.

His Worship-You mean before this blow? Mr. Gardiner said he did, and the complainant's wife, who was near at hand when the firstblow was struck, seeing that the defendant intended to strike again, got in between and tried . to separate the men. As no man would be expected to do, the defendant lifted his arm and struck Mrs. Walters two heavy blows on her kand and arm, causing considerable pain and bruises which were still visible. The complainant, seeing this, and being unable to combat with the defendant, who was a bigger and stronger man, picked up a stick and rightly, in protection of himself and his wife, struck the defendant two blows over the left side. Thinking he had done enough to keep the man quiet, he waited until the police arrived, and then the parties went to the police station and reported the matter to Inspector Kerr.

Complainant gave ovidence on the lines of his solicitor's opening statement. He said he heard the defendant call to the riceha coolie, "You come back and kill all those blessed chickens.

Mr. Gardiner-Did he call them "blessed chickens," or by another name?

Witness-He called them by another name. Dr. O. Marriott gave evidence as to the injuries received by the defendant.

Mr. J. Gibson, submarine engineer, said ho heard the defendant call out to his ricsha coolie, "Come and kill those fowls." The coolie evidently did not understand and continued to run. Defendant then said, "Well, if you won't do it I will," picked up the ricshe, ran it into and upset the hencoop.

Cross-examined by Mr. Harris:

Wby did Braun complain to the Sanitary twice, and why did other people in a petition about Mr. Walters' and your chickens?-Because there was a little ill-feeling. I suppose it was spite. But nothing was done, as an Inspector from the Sanitary Board inspected the place and said it was clean.

Mr. Harris-So it was when he called, I have no doubt. The hearing was adjourned until Friday.

MACAO NOTES.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

Macao, 18th July. POSTAL GRIEVANCES.

The public is much annoyed at the manner in which it is being treated by the Post Office, and not without good reason. Stamps cannot be bought by the public, but the money for the stamps with the letters must be handed to the office employees, who have to purchase the stamps and affix them. Needless delay in the transmission of the correspondence is occasioned. It is said that partiality is being shown in the sale of stamps that some people cannot purchase one stamp, but that others can obtain whole shoots. It is a scandal that such a state of affairs should be tolerated in a colony which is under the "Union Postale Universale" Letters sent to Hengkong and Canton have of late borne four cent stamps. Is that fair, when there are one a. d two cent stamps in the office?

THE WIRELESS CHAIN.

Commenting on the lecent announcement of the Government to establish a chain of wireless stations, the Calcutta Englishman remarks: It will be noticed that the scheme, magnificent as it is, is not entirely complete. The chain of stations runs eastward to Austral a, with connecting link down to South Africa; but an Imperial wire'ess system ought to encircle the globe. The line ought to run on to Hougkong, and Woi-bai-wei and thence scross the Pacific to Caunda, and crossing that Continent reach the Mother Country by way of the West Indies and British Guians, There is apparently no limit to the distances that can be covered by wireless provided that the sending stations are powerful enough. Wireless messages are received between England and the United States as a matter of course and a message sent from Paris has been picked up by a ship on the co at of South America. Paris is also able to speak directly with Canada, and there is now in process of erection at the Eiffel Tower a wireless station which it is expected will be able to send messages to any wireless station in the world. This is to be done by the production of a carrent of 100,000 volts. which will result in the creation of a vew service of electric waves, corresponding to the not won a musical scale. There are no physical diffi culties in the way, therefore, of a wireless British chain round the globe. By the time the next Imperial Conference meets the present scheme ought to be working, and the time will be ripe for the larger conception.

A HINT TO HOTEL KEEPERS.

At H.B.M.'s Supreme Court, Shanghai, last week before Mr. G. W. King, Registrar, George F. Cartis sued H. L. Hamilin to recover Tls. 100 on a promissory note.

The plaintiff in the witness box stated that the promiseory note was signed by Mr. Hamlin in his (witness') presence, and that it was defendant's signature. It was given for valuable consideration, the same being a note for Tls. 100 made payable to him (witness) by A. E. B. Gegnon, who had a claim against Mr. Hamlin for $146.

FRY COUNT TADASU HAYASHI, G.C.V.O., IN THE CORONATION NUMBER OF THE "JAPAN TIMES."]

The Count was one of the students who were sent to England for study by the Shogunate Government. Returning home in the stormy days of the Restora-tion, he joined the forces raised by the late Admiral Viscount Enomete for upholding the fallon cause of the Shogunate, and was imprisoned for two years, when the forces were subdued by the Imperial Army. He was soon given a post in the civil service, in which he steadily rose till in 1891 he was appointed Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs. He afterwards represented Japan at Poking, St. Petersburg, and London, in which last place to distinguished himself in connection with the work of bringing about the first Anglo-Japanese entente. Since his return home, in 10 s, he has been leading a comparatively retired life, though taking an active interest in all affairs of

For instance, Great Britain, which has from of old deep interests in the Far East, was confronted with the necessity of providing against the rising influence of the new Japan. The conclusion of an alliance between Great Britain and Wapan was considered as saving Great Britain the necessity of being on guard against the new Power in the East and to relieving her from Mearing an additional burden on that account On the other hand, Japan found herself in a position, that necessitated an alliance with one of the Western Powers, as the state of things His Honour: You had better go into the then obtaining did not allow her to stand the negotiations were begun formally in October alone in the Far East. Thus Great Britain and Japan were in the same plight and bound to sail in the same boat, so to speak, in the political rea of the Orient.

> Common interest is an essential requisite for the combination of two different States. without which no international alliauce accomplished with effect. Hence it absolutely impossible that the European Powers will form a combination among themselves to cope with the situation in the Far East, because their interests in the Far East can hardly be said to be in complete barmony Some countries may find themselves in accord in their respective interests in the Far East, while others may be at variance. If they incorporated politically against the Far Eastern countries advocating what is termed the "Yellow Peril," then no European nation would see the necessity for shaking hands with Japan. But in my opinion it is impossible that the Powers be induced to take harmonious action from mere sentiment, because no sound combination can be established unless it be based on the common interest of the contracting

> There was a time when the European Powers formed themselves into a combination, or what was called co-operation, in their dealings with China, Bu in those times Great Britain was the only country that had important commercial and economic interests in the Far East, while other Powers only followed her example, which fact made easy the formation of such a political federation. Things are, however, very different now. Modern progress and the development of the organs of traffic and communi cation have had the result of making the Powers extend their economic interests to the Fur East, which has, in turn, naturally caused a collision of interests between the powers in the Extreme Orient. In these circumstances it is a patent fact that the Western nations could not combine against the Far Eastern countries and cope with the situation in this quarter of the globe in harmonious accord. The sudden rise of the new Japan at that innoture effected a serious change on the political stage of the Far East, and the Powers have since then changed their attitude toward Japan : first of all, in settling Far Eastern policies. The position of Great Britain in the Far East at the time was such as to necessitate her shaking hands with Japan; and, knowing that circamstances i did not allow Japan to stand alone, Great Britain feared that Japan might enter into an alliance with some other Power if she did not join her. The relations between Great Britain and Russia were then anything but harmonlous and their interests were always in conflict. A rapprochement between Japan and Russia was feared as acting adversely on the interests of Great Britain, Great Britain was therefore very anxious to conclude an alliance, while Japan saw a good friend in England, whose interests in the Fur East corresponded with her own, while Britain's Eastern policy was in the same line with, Japan's, and unlike the somewhat aggressive attitude of certain other Powers. Seeing the necessity of concluding an Anglo-Japanese Alliance, I published a pamphlet styled 'Angle-Japanese Alliance," in May, 1895. shortly before my appointment as Minister in Peking. The motive of the Angle-Japanese Alliance subsequently concluded was in accordance with the principles then advocated by me. The talk of an Anglo-Japanese Alliance originated in the time of the three-Power intervention toward the close of the China-Japan War, it being advocated in political circles both in England and Japan. Prior to this, as the issult of the Chius-Japan war, the Chinese influence was entirely excluded from Korea by Japan, but Russia came to take the place of China in the poninsula. In cousequence, Japan had to negotiate with Russia in matters relating to Korea. This testifies to the friendly feeling toward Japan pervading all classes of the British nation. But in the meantime Russia's aggressive enterprise in Manchuria, consequent upon the settlement of the Boxer trouble, came to involve Japan and Russia in a rivalry which finally culminated in war. While Japan and Britain and Russia were fast becoming enemies.

Chamberlains a meeting with Mr. Kate. the Japanese Minister to England, at a private entertainment, had occasion to talk over Far Eastern questions, and in the course of the conversation the English statesman dwelt on the necessity of co-operation between his country and Japan vis-d-vis Electorn questions. Minis ter Kato approved of the proposition and telegraphed to Count Okuma, then Minister of Foreign Affairs, urging the necessity of agreeing to the suggestion made by Mr Chamberlain. The negotiations for the Angle-Japanese Alliance, however, practically commenced in the Spring of 1899, the year after my appointment as Minister to the Court of James's in the time of the second Ito Cabinet On April 17, the same year, I interviewed Lord Lanadowne, Foreign Secretary, on some official business, and on that occasion I stated that affairs in the Far East would become complicated more and more in future and asked his opinion about the establishment of some agreement for permanent co-operation between Great Britain and Japan in matters relating to the Far East. Lord Lansdowne seemed to harbour no particular objection to my proposal, and after repeated interviews I became fully conan Anglo-Japaneso Alliance. In the meantime a political change took place in Japan; the Ito Cabinet resigned and was replaced by the Knisura Cabinet with the late Viscount Sone as Foreign Minister, Later, by the instructions of the new Foreign Winister, I carried on further negotiations with the British Foreign Secretary, but so far the negotiations were made in private, as I was not invested with the power to carry on such negotiations officially, the matter being an informul proposal. After a temporary suspensathe same year, when I was instructed to exchange views with the British Government by Mr. (now Marquis) Komura, who had replaced Viscount Sone as Foreign Minister. The negotiations were then conducted formally, till the alliance was successfully concluded and signed January 30th, 1902.

The Anglo-Japanese Alliance was made public February 11th, 190?. The announcement took the nations of the world by surprise and not without reason. The negotiations had been kept in strict secrecy, and the alliance was made with one of the greatest Powers of the world, who had suddenly thrown aside its policy of "splendid izolation," and joined bands with the rising Power of the Extreme East. This was nover expected or dreamed of by other nations.

As to the end and aim of the alliance, it was meant for the maintenance of the status quo and permanent peace in the Extreme Orient, and the preservation of the open door and equal oppor-

The enthusiasm with which the announcement of the alliance was received by the peoples of the two countries bears elequent testimony to its having concurred with the public opinions of both nations. The alliance, which forms the backbone of Japan's foreign policy, especially may be said to be an adamanting elliance, as it is based on the common interest and harmonious agreement of feeling and soutiment between the two nations, combined with historical relations and practical necessity.

By virtue of the alliance Japan's position in the Far East was perfectly guaranteed, but meanwhile the relations between Japan and Russia vis-à-vis Manchurian questions grew gradually worse, till the two countries resorted to arms in February, 1904. In August, 1905, at the close of the Russo-Japanese war the Anglo-Japanese Alliance was renewed, though the term of the former alliance had not expired, owing to the great change in the situation of the Far East consequent upon the war. The new alliance was considerably enlarged in its scope, and covered entire Eastern Asia and the East Indies. The equilibrium of strength of the different Powers was not well kept in the Far East after the close of the China-Japan war. The Anglo- | PRINCES PLATE, Japanese Alliance was concluded at the time of the Bexer troubles of Chins, and was renewed after the cessation of hostilities between Japan and Russia, to make it meet the requirements of the new situation in the Far East brought about by the Titanic struggle between Japan and Russia. The renewed compact had a great effect in binding the two island Empires into increased intimacy and friendliness. By this, indeed, the true balance of power in this part of the world was rentored to its normal state.

The value and importance of the Alliance will be unchanged, nor is there any doubt of its long continuance. The only point against which Japan ought to guard herself is a wantonly aggressive policy. She must always adhere to her reaceful policy and endeavour to make the most of what she has so far gained and to promote her interests and development in a manner consistent with a pacific policy. But it must not be understood from this that Japan has to adhere at any cost to a negative, retiring policy, in every department of activities. On the contrary, in matters of trade and economy she ought to try to expand and develop with all her might. And the true value of the Alliance lies indeed in its power to enable us to attain this aim.

History abounds in examples demonstrating the fact that dominion, be it ever so vast and powerful, can not endure, if the foundation is in martial power only. But no age lacks in such shallow-minded persons who urge aggrandizement of territory and expansion of empire. Their ideas are simply absurd. They seem to think that the true power of a State can be grand and promoted by mere expansion of territory, and so they revel in foolish dreams of

Such thoughts are relics of the past; they to be the conclusion of an alliance with Great may have been good in the turbulent days of foudslism and in internecine wars. But in these days of enlightened civilization, they are utterly out of place. Suppose a country has brought another country under subjugation by power of arms. The victor has to provide for the security of the newly acquired possession. In other words, the power of the victorious country is to be lessened on that account. Thereforeit is that the State which aims at extending its dominions needs to be ready to suffer this after land, without suffering this disadvantage, let it go to some barren wilderness and conquer | sums alleged to have been illimitly obtained by it and transplant there the people from its old | them range downwards from £27 000, which is dominion. MARRIAGE OR DEATH.

"You will die on the tenth of the month, the fortune-teller had told Georgette Delvaille. and Georgette had believed her. Georgette Delvaille was a midinette, one of the little workgirls who may be seen at eight o'clock any morning in Paris trotting rap dly to the big dressmakers' shops in the Rue de la Palx from the heights of Montmartre or from Belleville. She bad met the fortune-teller in the little room of the concierge, and had allowed herself to be persuaded to have her fortune told. She was a credulous little person, and when the grimy old woman in the stained bombazine had, in return for her 1s. 8d., told Georgette that she was a dressmaker, that she loved pleasure, and that there was a dark-oyed man in her life, Georgette was quite prepared Africa the white sentiment is, perhaps to believe anything else.

THE ALTERNATIVE.

Georgette looked at the grim old woman, and she thought a minute. She had the money upstairs. She had been saving it to go down to 'the country when she got her three days' holiday, but what was the use of holidays if she were really to die on the tenth of the month.

"Wait just a moment," she said, gasping for breath a little. "Wait. Get the cards ready and the coffee grounds. I will be back directly with the money. She rushed up the six flights, opened her wardrobe door, took out the little box in which she kept her little bits of finery, and got the money out from the carefully tied corner of the handkershief underneath the ribbons.

She looked at it a little sadly, shrugged her shoulders, and ran rapidly downstairs again. What can't he helped cannot be helped," she said And sitting down in front of her she pushed the money over to the fortnne-teller. Five minutes afterwards the cards and coffee grounds had, with the fortune teller's help, modified poor little Georgette's sentence of death. She would die on the 10th of June, but there was a but-one thiny might save her. She must be married or promised in marriage before midnight on June 9.

"If-if I am not married, or engaged by then?" she asked. The fortune-teller shook her head. "No, no I don't mean that," said poor little Georgette. "But can you tell me how I shall die?" "That is impossible," said the fortune-teller. "It may be by an accident in the street. It may be by the knife of an asassin. It may be that you die by water, or you may die by fire. But the coffee grounds, the lines of the hand, and the cards never lie. I am only their servant. I say what they tell me, and I have been told and have told you the truth. Unless you are married or betrothed by midnight on June 9 death will be your portion. Poor little Georgette could not stop and listen to the conclerge. She fled upstairs and sbut herself into her little garret to cry by herself and think things over. "If she were not either married or engaged to be married by June 9 "-and that day was the 6th. She was a quiet, pretty little mouse of a girl, to whom no man had ever paid attention. There was the grocer's man downstairs. He was goodlooking and a flirt, they said. IS A PIEBALD EMPIRE POSSIBLE?

----QUESTIONS BEFORE THE CON-FERENCE.

The above is a question Mr. W. T. Stead put in the Review of Reviews in anticipation of the meeting of the Imperial Conference:--If the first radical question before the Conference is that of the relation between the Imperial Government and the Dominions for the purpose of Imperial defence, the second, and rerhaps the mere serious and urgent, is the relation between the Dominions and the other subjects of His Majesty Inhabiting Asia. The Premiers belong exclusively to the White Dominions. It is true that General Botha represents a Colony, the majority of whose inhabitants are not white; but in South on that account, more aggressively dom-There are so many dark-eyed men in Paris inant than it is in any other Dominion, that Georgetto's innocent little life could hardly Mr. Fisher stands for a White Australia; Gen-

> of Asiatics into British Columbia. This question of keeping the Dominions white even when, as in Africa, they are already piebald, divides itself into two. The first relates to the exclusion of the Indian subjects of His Majesty from the white dominions of the King;

THE POLICY OF EXCLUSION.

The subject excites fierce controversy. The right of our Colonists, say in Australia, to adopt the policy of dog-in-the-manger by excluding yellow and brown men from a continent round the rim of which a handful of white men have settled, is hardly defensible before any impartial judge. Australia could feed and lodge a couple of hundred millions of human boings if her gates were flung open to the free immigration of Japanese and Chinese. At present there are hardly five million Australians in Australia, and they are not multiplying their numbers either by immigration or by births. Canada is just as sensitive lest coloured men should earn the'r daily bread in opening up the industrial resources of British Columbia. South Africa is attempting to solve the difficulty by imposing a literary test intended to exclude Asiatics without gaving so.

When the Transvarl was an independent Sovereign State, the British Government was the vehement champion of the rights of Indian immigrant. Now that the British flag floats over - Johannesburg the Indian Government can do nothing. If India were under a foreign flag it would be different. The trouble is that the British Indian losses all chance of redress because the same flag which shelters him also floats over those who do him wrong. SIR WILFRID LAURIER'S DEFENCE.

Britain in old days bembarded the brown and yellow nations of China and Japan into opening their ports to white-skinned British merchants. But Britain acting through her Dominions oversea closes her ports to the King's own subjects if they happen to be born with coloured skins. The position is somewhat illogical. But Sir Wilfrid Laurier maintains that it is practicable and necessary. To quote his own

The policy I have followed is fourteen years old and based on two ideas. The first is that relations between England and Asiatic nations should remain friendly. The second is that if we were to admit unchecked immigration from Chino, Japan or India these good relations would not continue. Therefore that immigration must be checked and kept within responsible bounds. The reason is that the nations of Asia for centuries have been kept in a sordid condition as to mind, dress and body. As a result they can keep themselves on a scale that a white man cannot, and can accept a lower wage, which if permitted to prevail, would bring economic disturbance fraught with evil consequence.' SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE SAUCE

FOR THE GANDER. The white working man, finding his wages under out by Asiatic labour, would, as experience proves, attempt to murder or intimidate his yellow-skinned competitor. Hence, to Georgette blushed, and smiled at him. "How avoid complications, keep the Asiatic out; The Chinese argue much in the same way about missionaries, and the old Japanese proceeded on the same principle in closing their ports to our traders. In both cases the white Suppose that the Asiatics should decide that tion of the regulation of Asiatic immigration into serious consideration. The Japanese are not likely to tolerate for ever the present refusal to accord to them human rights extended

If the other Dominions were to follow the example of Canada, where according to the scarcely dared to venture out to buy her food Jewish World," the immigration officiels have now. TWO SUGGESTED COMPROMISES. A writer in the Round Table last February put forward the following suggestion as a pos-you must not die -I never dreamed that you reached which would settle the immigration relations between the Dominions and Japan on the following basis. That each race should have the right of excluding altogether labourers and artisans of the other race, but that educated persons, travellers, traders, students, and so on should have free entry, but under such restrictions as would prevent them from becoming permanent residents.

Whether on this basis or on some other the writer insists that the Empire must arrive at a common policy or it must disrupt. The Dominions cannot stand alone sgainst Japan ; if Great Britain supports the Dominions she may have to face the hostility of Japan in the Far East, as well as the hostility of Germany in

SECRET OF SUCCESS IN THE NEW ART.

History tells us, says the London Express, that the greatest revolutions take place in silence, and it is not surprising that the recent change in the art of kissing has passed almost unnoticed. The change is the direct outcome of the large but voyue, and it is a striking example of what the late Herbert Spencer termed the adjustment of acts to ends."

Regarded from a distance, a woman's hat, with brim extending half a yard in every directien, has the appearance to a man's eye of a halo round the head of the divinity who wears it. But should a closer approach be called for, the projecting brim, especially if sharp at the edges and reinforced by a "cheval de frice" of hatpins, acts rather as a ring fence and constitutes a serious obstacle, which needs all a man's resolution to overcome. It has been done, Great as the difficulties undoubtedly are in this case, they are still more serious when the necessity arises for two women, both wearing large hats, to kiss one another. "When Greek meets Greek-Fortunately, the ingenuity of the sex has discovered a solution of the problem. In the most successful instances the head is tilted slightly backwards and downwards till the brims of the two hats stand opposite to each other in the same plane.

The face is then cautiously advanced, the greatest care being taken that the brims of the hats shall not clash at any It would seem that an agreement could be point. When the space separating them becomes infinitesimal and the daylight showing were so poor or I would have spoken, Georgette, difficulty and pave the way to stable commercial between is reduced to a mere crack, the lips are projected as far as possible from the face. If the operation is skilfully performed a satisfactory conjunction is effected. But the manouvre is not complete. A slip may yet be fatal. The greatest caution is taken in disenguging. First, the lips are called in; next, the face is cautiously retreated, the brims are moved apart, and the head is taken to its normal position.

An attempt to execute this delicate mancenvre by two ladies who had obviously practiced it insufficiently in private was attended with a most lamentable result. The heads, instead of being drooped on opposite sides, as, of course, they must be, were by some misunderstanding lowered in the same direction, It seems to me-as I stated last month, and and the brims clashed together. A rending

Indeed, it is hinted, though it seems incredible, ment and Japan to receive on equal terms that the custom of kissing at each meeting is the same number of immigrants from each falling into desuctude among the younger other, which would establish the principle members of the clubs, largely on account of the

RUSSIA AND JAPAN.

A NEW EPOCH OF FRIENDLY RELATIONS.

In Tuesday's issue the Jiji Shimpe editorially remarks that the recent conclusion of an Exremarks that the recent conclusion of an Ex-tradition Treaty between Russia and Japan was rapidly followed by the conclusion of a treaty for mutual protection of industrial property and also a treaty relating to the mutual recognition of commercial companies. The Governments of the two countries also came to an agreement regarding the disposition of im-movable property of Russian subjects in places under Japanese jurisdiction in Manchuria at the time of the late war, and a report now has it that the Russian Government had acceded to the claims for compensation for the pelagic to the claims for compensation for the pelagioushing schooners, Mic Mark and Komping Maru, which were seized two or three years ago by the Russian authorities. All these arrangements, coupled with the conclusion of the Pelagic Scaling Conference, have eliminated the numerous diplomatic questions long pending between the two countries. The path is thus paved for intimate relations, and it may be regarded as the opening of a new epoch in the international relations of Russia and Japan. Prior to the late war a feeling of mutual suspicion and mistrust existed between the two countries, but such a sontiment was eradicated after the restoration of peace, and the two countries entered into a new sphere of inter-Saigen

The conventions concluded in 1907 and the leading Powers of the Far East will be in perfect accord. The relations between Russia and Japan may now be said to verge on an all'ance for all practical purposes. Amongst the causes responsible for this entisfactory result may be lenumerated the mutual recog. nition of the existence of natural lines of domarkation in their affairs in the Far East, and that traspass by either means loss, while if they keep themselves within their own limits there exists no fear of their interests clashing. There. is also mutual recognition of the fact that the harmonious co-operation of the two Powers. armies ready for emergencies on the Asiatio continent, will guarantee poace in the Far East and check the ambitious designs of third Cap- Powers. Russia's recognition of her own fault in having concentrated her whole energy in an aggressive policy in the Far East at the sacrifice of her interests in the Near East, which resulted in the less of balance of power between her and the combined forces of Germany and Austria. also makes for peace, while the impetus given to the promotion of cordial relations between Russia and Japan by the entente cordiale concluded between Great Britain, Russia and France, especially the improved relations between Russia and Great Britain. a nation allied with Japan, must also be considered. Although the interview which took place between the Tear and the Kaiser and the Russo-German Agreement on the Persian and the Bardad rallways shows a new phase in Russian diplomacy, the fact that her diplomatic policy for the Far East remains unchanged is admitted on all hands. The conclusion of the Treaties enumerated above must be welcomed as a settlement of all the questions that allowed to linger after the late The nation should not overlook this fact in Russo Japanese relations and should use its best endeavours to promote cordial relations with that country. At the same time it would do well to refrain from any actions calculated to arouse suspicion on the part of the Russians. The proposed creation of two Army Divisions in Chosen is ill-advised, as it is likely to arouse the profound suspicion of Russia. The interests of the two countries in various Chinese questions are identical, and it is all important to attach importance to the promptness in their joint action when emergencies arise .- Jopan Mail's translation.

The public, remarks the San Francisco Ci Chronicle, has been so often deceived by the premature announcements of scientists, to say nothing of the fraudulent nestrams of medical quacks, on the subject of cancer ourse that its attitude toward all research is one of suspicion tempered by earnest hope. In a measure the intensity of that hope, coupled with the keen appetite for sensational stories, is responsible for many of the alleged discoveries by the pseudo pathologists of the illustrated magazine.

And yet, though every season brings forth its "new and absolute cure for the greatest scourge of mankind," only to close with no modification of the death rate due to this cause, much valuable work has been done in the way of observation and experiment. So far the results are not such as to warrant the prediction of a cure, but they are sufficient to impart a tone of coulidence to enlightened hopes.

As distinguished from those all too eager to exploit each ray of knowledge, the specialists who are devoting their lives to research are, if anything, over-modest as to the importance of their progress reports. case in point is that of Dr. Erwin F. Smith, in charge of the laboratory of plant pathology in the Department of Agriculture, Washingtont In a paper read recently at Buffalo he outlined a number of experiments and their results, of which it is not too much to say that they are by far the most striking yet achieved TRADE MARK REGULATIONS in this branch of investigation. Already an army of Enropean scientists is at work on a repetition of the experiments with a view to checking his observations, though there is little room for doubt as to their verification. Briefly his results are as follows: A discovery of the cause of "crown gall" in plants; the tracing of the bacteria responsible for this disease; new light on the probable relation of the bacteria to the cause of cancer; the reasons for the failure of attempts to inoculate animal cancer. The similarity between plant and animal tumors has long been noted, but until Dr. Smith's research the resemblance was not established in detail. In addition to showing BOMBAY RATES OF EXCHANGE the analogy to the malignant tumor tissue of animals, he points out that this plant disease gives rise to secondary tumors or cancers; that a certain degree of immunity can be obtained by repeated moculations and that crown gall has a tendency to appear in callous or scar tissue; finally, and it is the most remarkable resem-galls to return after excision. It is not the part of the layman to analyze this evidence, but it is the right of the public to know something of the results achieved by those engaged in the work of solving the most baffling of all the problems of the human system. The summary given may be disappointing to those who can be satisfied only by exaggerated expectations, and yet to others it must read as the most encouraging of all recent advances in MATL TABLES for 1911 ... 0.80 & 0.28 medical science.

The hat worn with this was most entirely upon wheat, supplemented with sun-kissed straw, with a wreath of hedge flowers in which mauve predominated.

THE THREE DECKER.

Thursday's Globe, found its way into the this great road, that is, until one is in Szechuan, Royal enclosure at Ascot on Tuesday, and very little rice is sold at these eating stalls. was very much admired on a tall and beauti. On the plains of Honan foodstuffs are ful woman. It took the form of white Chan- produced in great abundance, wheat, bartilly, arranged on a short skirt in flounces ley, beans, peas, sweet potatoes, rape-seed, with scarcely any fullness, and some twelve or corn and a great variety of fruits; besides thirteen inches deep. With this was worn one ootton and homp; but the chief crops are of the new shawl-shaped capes in similar lace to wheat and cotton. Honan is the chief wheat that of the gown. Perfectly flat at the back, it producing province of China. Its enormous was draped in front to meet at the waist, where crop feeds its own wheat eating population of it was held apparently by a cluster of lovely 36,000,000, besides contributing wheat to the orchide, the two ends of the lace drooping below | mills of Shanghai and Hankow. The wheat is the flowers. This cape is quite a feature of the season's fashions. On a fine figure it looks charming; on an expansive, round-shouldered wearer it looks dowdy.

BEADED VOILE GOWNS.

A prominent feature of this year's Ascot is voile, in white or pale tints richly bouled in the same or a contrasting colour, and worn over a silk lining. One little lady had tu-ned herself out with remarkable success in a creamcoloured voite beaded with Parma violet colour, round the hom, at the edge of the sleeves, and round the very low-cut bodice, which was filled in to the neck with filmy embroidered net. Very chic indeed were the addends, shoes, stockings, long silk gloves, and hat, in Parma violet colour. The sunshade was white, embroidered in beads and floss silk. The beads are not very heavy, and serve the purpose of drawing down the folds of the gown and keeping them in the correct slim outline new so indispensable to smart frocks.

THE NEW PAINTED MUSLINS.

This lovely, poetic material is more charming FRANCISCO REYES. American str., 518, E. than ever this season. The colours, for the Drozen, 12th July-Manila 8th July, Sugar | most part, are faint and pale, and it has been a favourite material for bridesmaids wear through-HANOI, French str., 730, G. Bouhier, 8th out the season; Those gowns in which it is July-Haiphong via Pakhoi 6th July, partly concealed by an over drapery are more successful than the dresses of which it forms the HANYANG, British str., 1.256, Spink, 15th principal fabric. Take, for instance, a white July-Hongay 13th July, Coal-Butter- | charmense draped over a painted muslin, the floral design of which is in yellow and deep HOPSANG, British str., 1,359. J. M. Hay, 14th | wall-flower tints. The charmense is short, and July-Pulo Laut, Coal-Jardine, Matheson has a band of black velvet some two inches wide slong the hem, and outlining HSIN CHANG, Chinese str., 1.258, Hamblin, the opening at the right side, and 15th July-Shanghai 12th July, General- diagonally across the front, where painted muslin shows between. The hat worn with this charming frock was of the shepherdess July-Singapore and Holbow 16th July, order, not extravagently large, and trimmed with narrow black velvet which tied beneath the chin, slightly drawing down the brim at either side. The rest of the trimming was one enormous pale pink rose, and foliage, imitated

This, in pale colours, has been one of the successes of a season that will never be-forgotten for its delightful month of May, in which we sujoyed August weather. The favourite mixtures in these silks are deveneck, robin's egg blue and green, mauve and blue, sulphur and green, and in fact almost all pale tones, many of them recalling the opal in their defily mingled variety Many of these gowns were worn with long coats to match, some of them sleeveless, the side being buttoned together underneath the Others had the new shawl-shaped jacket, also in the silk, and others were merely reminiscent of the tailor-made, with its short skirt and short coat to match. Some long skirts were worn, and they very often got into trouble owi g to the long prevalence of the short skirt, which leads men to forget to be wary when walking behind a lady who trails her garment behind her. It almost looks as though the long skirt would return to us. This is distinctly regrettable, for the short is much more convenient, much more cleanly, and much more hygienic.

THE VELVET HEM.

With such vigour has the velvet 18th July-San Francisco 21st June, | to the toilette, charming in itself. folk will remember that either t this way had black velvet collar a turned the elbows. This gown one, and was of a simplicity th figures sold in the toy variety of

MILLINERY AT ASCOT.

The reappearance of the turban is a delightful feature of Ascot and the Horse Show. A lady made a great sensation on the opening day of the latter by weaving a semi-Eastern turban in a mixture of peach-blossom colour and eau-denil, the folds caught just above the forehead by a moonstone surrounded by amethysts and Mr.4Mrs.D E Donnelly Mrs M. E. Sheaver diamonds. It was a charming face, and though | Mr C. L. Gorham most of the hair was concealed by the turban, Mr. & Mrs. C.E. Harvey the effect was not unbecoming. Both at Ascot | Dr. Hobson and the Horse Show the small hat and the Mr. H. Hoffman close-fitting toque were noticeable. Large Mr. H. Koch hats, there were, on Tuesday, especially Mr& M . P. Lemmert Mr. and Mrs. E. A. N. on the public lawn, and a few in and children the royal enclosure, but it is very Mr. & Mrs. A. C. Logan Mr. J. W. Wilson evident that the reign of the immense cartwheel is drawing to a close; so far as smart Society is concerned. Beautiful hair once more | Capt. Thos Arthur reasserts its charm, after having been hidden away for months under the immensity of the headgear. And how very lovely English hair is! Nowhere on one's travels, except perhaps in the West and South of Ireland, where the colleens go about bareheaded with burnished Mr K Bysack locks, gracefully arranged, does one see such Miss. M. Gains exquisite hair as in England. Not only is it Mr H. George beautiful in itself, fine and soft, but also well Miss to vay tended. Every individual hair has its own Miss O W. Hargis particular share of brilliant gloss. What a pity Mr.T. Hood that it should ever be hidden away under a Mr. Humes mionstrous hat, not even always becoming in Mr. John Lennox

THE SMALL COATER. A brilliant feature of this year's Ascot is the silk coateo, either in shot, soft silk, or in taffeta. and in any colour that one chooses to wear it, Bright crimson, omerald green, blue in any Last year we had a white Ascot. This year shade, sulphur colour, or beige and white, were it is a white and grey, the majority of the all to the fore on Tuesday. A white gown, costumes being in a mingling of those two much embroidered in cord and silks, with beads colours. A great number of blue gowns were introduced here and there, had for accompaniworn, and in almost every shade of that ment one of these dainty little short conts in pleasant colour. At this great dress parade Gobelin blue, exactly matching the eyes of the of the year it is satisfactory to find that the wearer, whose turban of softest orche was most hobble skirt was worn only by those who have becoming. These short coats have straight no pretensions to lead the fashions. In the backs, but fit fairly closely to the figure in front, royal enclosure a little more amplitude about where they are generally trimmed with cord, the hem was distinctly observable. A good embroidery, or a mingling of the inevitable

Along the great western highway which traverses Shansi, Shonsi and part of Szechuan provinces are thousands of eating stalls, where The three-flounce gown alluded to in last food is served to myriads. For 1,000 miles over carried 1,200 miles by road, In Central and Northern Shensi and in Shausi wheat is the main crop, often forty bushels to the acre being cultivated with great care, almost inch by Inch. In Southern Shansi the opium poppy was formerly the most valuable crop but last year wheat reigned supreme and the province produced the largest yield ever known, thirty-five to forty bushels to the

In June, 1910, wheat sold there at 25 to 30 cents a bushel and flour was retailing at threefourths of a cent a pound. Much of this flour is ground in stone mills along the Fen river, operated by water power. There are probably 1,000 of these mills in Shansi.

'Outside of West China, says the Consul, there are not many places in the world where one will find wheat cultivated on the sides of steep mountains 7,000 to 8,000 feet above sea | ## E Shoog Hoi Yangon -Gueese, level and 5,000 to 6,000 feet above the floors of the valleys, but in the mountains of Shansi it is done in little patches of from six to 100 feet

Szechuan province, with an area of 218,000 square miles, supports 80,000,000 people. It is reckoned that 70 per cent. of the population is rural. The farmer there lives on his field, and not in a village as in other parts of China. Agriculturally Szechuan is the richest of China's eighteen provinces. Rice is the staple food, with wheat next.

In none of the four provinces mentioned. Honan, Shansi, Shensi and Szechuan, are modern agricultural implements used in the production of wheat. Consul Arnold says: "It is quite certain that when these four provinces are placed in proper communication with the rest of the empire and with the outside world flour will not become one of their imports, for they can produce wheat at a price which would make wheat, and possibly flour, flow outward in great abundance
